(a) It has been found impossible to confine the Return to advances made since 1861, owing to there being no means of distinguishing between the repayments made on account of Loans advanced before and subsequently to that date.

* On the extension of the Income Tax to Ireland in 1863 Consolidated Annuities representing a capital value of £,500,000 £ due by Ireland were remitted. (See "Harvard," vol. 203, pp. 1303-1403-3.)

† Remitted as against the borrowers, but charged on the Irish Church Fund.
